

DEVELOPING BRAINS AFTER DAY'S WORK

Many Thousands Improve Minds
by Correspondence Courses

New York, Dec. 29.—In an effort to disclose the present status of industrial education in this country, and to link the school with the workshop in a nation-wide plan to provide instruction for millions of workers, experts have submitted reports to the annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers embodying the results of their surveys.

Made under the auspices of the society's committee on education and training, the investigations were conducted by James A. Moyer, of Boston, director of university extension, Massachusetts department of education, and secretary of the National University Extension Association; Robert L. Sackett, dean of engineering in Pennsylvania State college; and Charles R. Richards, director of Cooper Union, New York.

"Industrial education has advanced in a truly remarkable way and promises much for the future," said a statement summarizing the reports issued by the society's committee. More than 100,000 persons are studying in trade extension courses in New York alone, and 225,000 are studying in federally aided vocational schools supported by appropriations of over $18,000,000, according to the committee, which found that more than 4,000,000 students in the United States have completed correspondence courses.

The committee suggests that each industry co-operate with the university-extension agency in its state and secure for its employees the additional personal instruction which is furnished by correspondence instruction is applied for by groups, and the consequent formation of what are called extension classes. The committee states its purpose to be "a co-ordination and simplification which may be suggestive of a standard code of procedure in vocational training."

President Ira N. Hollis, of the Worcester, Mass., Polytechnic Institution, speaking of the extension and correspondence schools, said that the way to an education is being opened up by these schools to thousands of men and women who have no money to go to college.

"Correspondence instruction lacks the contact among students that promotes discussion and supplies stimulus for study, but it makes up for that in the serious purpose of every student, and in what must be confessed is superior instruction," said Dr. Hollis. "A correspondence school can afford to employ the very best talent in the country for preparing textbooks, and it can tend to the work a degree of technical skill that one cannot find in the average college. The extension schools are usually connected with universities."

What Developments Show. Developments during the last year, according to Dean Sackett, show that there is a growing national appreciation of the need for apprentice training. Schools for bricklayers, steamfitters, carpenters, electricians and others have, he said, succeeded notably in San Francisco. The Industrial Association of that city now believes, he reported, that it can train men to be master craftsmen in 12 to 18 months. In the past three to four years have been demanded.

Both employers and unions are developing industrial training in New York. A joint plan applied to wood-working apprentices is in operation, and plans are being made for the organization of training for plasterers, bricklayers and other trades as soon as practicable.

"This movement by the New York building congress has the support of financiers, contractors, and union labor and it has aroused wide-spread interest in the problem of supplying an adequate number of skilled mechanics and artisans," said Dean Sackett.

PRAISES AMERICAN WOMAN

Miss Cecil Lettich Former British Golf Champ, Calls Miss Alex Stirling Finest Shot Maker in U. S.

London, Dec. 29.—Miss Cecil Lettich, the former British woman golf champion, is at present in the hands of a specialist for treatment of her arm, and she has said recently that she could not define her prospects in the matter of playing in the next ladies' championship games.

Regarding her tour last summer in Canada and the United States, Miss Lettich declared it was purely of a private nature. She was particularly impressed with women's golf in the Dominion. Of the outstanding players in Canada, Miss Ada Mackenzie and Miss Popler were probably the greatest.

Miss Alex Stirling was undoubtedly the greatest exponent of women's golf in the United States, in spite of the fact that she curtailed her play during 1922. She was the finest "shot maker" over there. She had more shots almost than any other player. Miss Lettich considers that the majority of women's golf courses in the United States and Canada are easier than those in England. There is no undulation there as in England, and virtually no wind. The courses, however, are very much better kept than in this country.

CONSOLIDATED CONTROL

Year Of 1922 Sees Unprecedented Development of Finances in Czechoslovakia.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 29.—The year 1922 has been notable in the development of banking in Czechoslovakia. Efforts have been made, and successfully, to consolidate the banks under a system of joint control by which it will be possible, by mutual agreement, to limit the field of activities, thus cutting out waste and duplication of effort and bringing about greater business prosperity for all the institutions concerned.

Sister Weeps at Gounaris' Grave

Here is the first picture in this country of the recent executions of Greek ex-ministers by the present military government. This shows the sister of Gounaris, former prime minister, weeping beside his brother's grave. Gounaris was taken by his executioners from the hospital, given strychnine until able to stand and then shot with his four companions. The bodies were dumped in the mud in a public cemetery. Relatives were then notified where the corpses could be found.

One of the most far-reaching changes is the abolition of local branches of the larger banks. The business of these branches, such as the collection of deposits, is being taken over by the savings banks which already cover the country.

For the past four years there has been progress toward consolidation of the financial system of the new republic, aimed particularly at financing the country's import and export trade, and the accomplishments of 1922 round out this program.

DETERMINED WOMAN CARRIES ELECTION

Preliminary Reverses Fail to Discourage South Dakota Miss

Huron, S. D., Dec. 29.—Miss Gladys Pyle, recently elected as South Dakota's first woman legislator on the independent ticket as Beadle county representative in the legislature has been connected with the civic life and enterprises of Huron during the years she has lived here. She was born in Huron and is a graduate of Huron college. She was elected and at present is president of the Huron College Alumni association.

At the republican proposal meetings held previous to the primary election, Miss Pyle was not endorsed by the republicans, being one of four candidates who received a majority for the endorsement, but being also the candidate with the least number of votes. At the primary election she was defeated by the opposing independent candidate, E. L. Gordon, by a small majority. She contested Gordon's election and was nominated by more than 60 votes.

At the state election Miss Pyle was elected by a plurality of 2,156 votes. She led the legislative ticket by 250 votes.

For four years after her graduation from Huron college Miss Pyle taught in the Huron High school, instructing in Latin, civics, history and government. Two years after her Huron High school teaching career, she was principal of the Westington public schools.

During the last three years Miss Pyle has been actively engaged in citizenship work. She was connected directly with the National League of Women Voters and worked in Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Ohio and South Dakota, addressing gatherings of women.

Miss Pyle is a member of the P. E. O., a secret organization which has a chapter in Huron, S. D. She is a daughter of Mrs. John Pyle, president of the South Dakota League of Women Voters. Her father, John Pyle, was a former attorney general of South Dakota, holding that office between 1889 and 1902.
